CE Program: Odontogenic Sinusitis

Presented by: Dr. David Stoddard and Dr. Rod Tataryn

Course Description: Despite extensive scientific recognition and high prevalence, dental infections manifesting in the maxillary sinuses can be challenging to diagnose and are frequently overlooked in medical and dental practices or often misdiagnosed as rhinogenic sinusitis. This lecture explains the anatomy and function of the paranasal sinuses, sinusitis etiology and treatment and the causes of odontogenic sinusitis with associated clinical and radiographic findings. The goal is to help practitioners recognize odontogenic sinusitis in daily practice and offer appropriate care and specialist collaboration when indicated in order to improve the health of their patients suffering with this condition.*
